ARBITRATION CLAUSE WHOLLY DISREGARDED

CHIEF JUSTICE WINSLOW UN- EARTH'S LONG UNUSED CON-STITUTIONAL PROVISION.

LAWSUITS PREFERRED

In Address to Attorneys of State at Green Bay He Explains Origin of Conciliation Tribunals.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Green Bay, Wis., June 24.—An unusual section of the state constitution was revealed today to its possible usefulness by Chief Justice L. W. Winslow of the supreme court this afternoon, speaking at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Bar association. Apparently no one has known why the provision was incorporated in the fundamental law of the state, and it remained for the chief justice to unearth its historical significance and show the possibilities of its application today.

The clause provides that the legislature shall pass laws for the regulation of tribunals of conciliation, defining their powers and duties. Such tribunals may be established in and for any township and shall have the power to render judgments, to be obligatory on the parties, when they shall voluntarily submit their matter in difference to arbitration, and agree to abide the judgment or assent thereto in writing.

Provision Never Regarded.

"After a lapse of more than three score years this provision has still stood intact in our constitution with out amendment of any nature," said Justice Winslow. "Notwithstanding its language is the language of conciliation has been established nor has there ever been any serious effort to establish them so far as I have been able to discover. It has always seemed to me somewhat remarkable that a positive constitutional mandate of this nature should be wholly disregarded, not to say treated with contempt, for so many years, and this feeling has been the cause of some investigations into the origin of the clause and the nature of the tribunals contemplated by it."

Judge Winslow then traced at some length the history of this provision as found in the New York constitution of 1846, quoting from the debate on the subject. He noted that the Wisconsin constitution was copied from New York's, but the system had already been in operation in Denmark, Prussia, France and Spain.

"In Denmark they were established in 1795, and it appeared that for the three years before that time there were 25,000 law suits, while for the three years immediately subsequent to that period they had dwindled down to 1,000 in a three year period," said Judge Winslow.

Law Suits Diminished.

"Out of about 225,000 cases brought before the courts of conciliation in Denmark in the five-year period from 1880 to 1890, (both inclusive), about two-thirds were settled or abandoned, and about one-third came before the court."

He said that it appeared quite clearly from the discussions before the constitutional convention that the tribunals which the framers had in mind were to be local in nature, and to deal with small litigation frequently arising between neighbors.

"He said that in view of the apparent success of the conciliation principle in European countries, the practical nature of all attempts to carry that principle upon the American systems of jurisprudence seem singular. He pointed out that the Ohio and Indiana constitutions adopted this provision but that an investigation shows that no use had been made of them. He said he did not wish to be understood as making an argument in favor of the establishment of the tribunals, of conciliation such as exist in Denmark and France. He believed the matter was worthy of investigation, however."

Sees Reason for Failure.

"I think I can see that there may be reasons why such tribunals might operate satisfactorily among the people of simple habits, like the rural and semi-rural communities of continental Europe and might be of little use in most of our American states," he continued. "It is certainly true that our traditions are rather against such tribunals. Both the Englishman and the American have guarded with jealous care the right to vindicate their rights in court without let or hindrance."

Judge Winslow traced the possibility of the system but said that his paper is suggestive rather than controversial, to provoke thought and investigation rather than to attempt to convince.

Need Arbitration Scheme.

"Every lawyer knows, and every judge knows, nay, every man of experience in the law knows, that many a lawsuit founded on some slight, and in some cases upon some innocent wrong, has dragged along for years," said the speaker, "squandering the money of both parties, stirred up ill will perhaps for generations, and finally left no tangible results save for its crop of bad blood and hate. Everybody knows also that had these parties been compelled to come together before some wise and

OLD AT TWENTY

Return of Youth with Proper Food.

Many persons who eat plenty never seem to be properly nourished. That's because the food is not digested and absorbed. Much that is eaten is never taken up by the system as real food, and so the tissues simply starve and the individual may, as in a recent case, look and feel old in what should be the bloom of life, youth.

"At twenty I was prematurely old. The health and vigor and brightness of youth had been, as it seemed, stolen from me. I went to work in the morning with slow steps and a dull head.

"My work through the day was unsatisfactory for my breakfast lay in my stomach like a hard lump. I was peevish and the gas in my stomach was very annoying. After supper I usually went to bed to toss half the night from sheer nervousness.

"This was all from indigestion—caused by wrong eating.

"Finally I tried Grape-Nuts and I cannot describe the full benefits received from the food. It gave me back my health. It has completely restored good digestion and my ailments have disappeared. I steadily improved and am now strong and in perfect health."

fails to adopt these principles, and give pledge that these principles will be carried out, need look to this non-partisan organization for support."

Then came the report of the committee on resolutions. Phillips and Whitehead's idea of national politics was voiced, but taking it all in all, it was a strong platform. It appears in full elsewhere. It was adopted as everything else was during the hot afternoon by a yes and no vote with enthusiasm.

Mr. Teubert was born in Germany April 18th, 1870. He came to this country in his early life, and resided here for many years. He was a member of the Eagles, Moose and Germania lodges. Besides a wife, he leaves a mother and two brothers, Charles and Herman, residing at Indian Ford. A father, August Teubert, passed away two years ago. ### CITY WELL POLICED BY CHIEF CHAMPION

Authorities With Circus Aid Local Police Department in Watching For Pickpockets.

Chief of Police P. D. Champion had all members of the department working today, stationed at the downtown corners and several men in plain clothes worked in the crowds. A large number of the circus co-operated with the city department and very little trouble is expected tonight.

A detective with the show reported to the police that this morning that "dips" or pickpockets were following the show before the company reached Elgin and Kenosha. No trouble had been experienced from the members of the light fingered gentry in the two cities. If the thieves expected to play their nefarious trade in this city they found plenty of evidence that the police are on the job.

Fakers were also closely watched and several questioned at the station. All peddlers traveling with the circus were required to show badges as they are not required to take out a city license, the hundred dollar fee paid by the city covering their right to peddle in the city. Four peddlers licenses were granted by City Clerk J. P. Hammann this morning to Janesville men and strangers.

Three lockford detectives were in Janesville as a guest of the circus. The Hagenbeck-Wallace shows give a performance Thursday in Rockford and the detectives came here to watch for members of the "pocket artists."

The circus authorities showed great interest in aiding Chief Champion in policing the city.

Chief Champion issued a warning this morning for people in the resident districts to doubly lock and care for valuables tonight, for while no thieves are anticipated, the city declared it would be better to safeguard the houses. Warning is also given against short change experts.

Amusements

CONRAD POPULAR OPERA AND CONCERT SINGER.

One of the musical treats of the season which Janesville people will have the pleasure of enjoying will be the singing of Miss Conrad, who with her company of associated artists will give a series of notable song recitals in this city on the afternoon and evening of July 2.

The Conrad programs occupy a place apart from the majority of concerts, having a phantasy, a magic, an enchantment, all their own. They are filled with the light of a new idea. They are absorbing, dignified, refined and inspiring, presenting the best of music in such a manner as to make it appeal to all classes of listeners.

Miss Conrad, with her rare gifts of interpretation and marvelous insight into music, is justly a distinguished vocalist. Singing in German, French and Italian with an extensive repertoire in grand opera, her favorite roles being Mimi "La Boheme," Nedda "Pagliacci," Marguerite "Faust," Rosina "The Barber of Seville," Arline "The Bohemian Girl," Hensel and Gretel, "Cinderella" and "Mignon." She is resonant enough to meet successfully all the exigencies which arise in a wide and successful career as a public singer.

Her voice shows a range of three octaves, strength, flexibility and sweetness of tone, which is a constant source of pleasure and delight to those who are privileged to hear her.

SPORTS

Sport Snap Shots

Kid Williams doesn't intend to change the weight in his class. The 116 pound limit that has stood for years is quite satisfactory to the Baltimore kid and he doesn't intend to move it up a bit. "Quite a few folks seemed to think that I would want to shove the limit up as Ritchie did," says Williams, "but I am quite contented with the poundage as it stands." Sam Harris, Williams' manager, announces that after the bantam champ has done away with all competition in his class he will take a swing or two at the featherweight. "We'll bar none of them, not even Kilbane, only asking that they make 122 pounds for us, as the Kid will never weigh in at more than 115," says Sam. "He would never be able to go over that." As Johnny Kilbane plans to go after the lightweights, we can see possibilities, should this thing continue through all the classes, of the bantam champ winning the featherweight title. Very indirectly, however.

The American poloists are beginning to discuss plans for the recovery of the West Chester cup that sailed to England recently in company with Lord Wimborne and his troupe of talented polo artists. The extremely decisive defeat of the American four made it clear that the recovery of the cup will depend to a large extent upon the success with which a new team is assembled. It is clear that the players who represent us in the recent encounter will hardly be able to turn the trick and it is thought that an entire new team will be required. Aside from the Meadowbrook team the best polo talent in the Cooperstown team, this same having shown great promise in the past several seasons. Louis Stoddard, who played in last year's international match, will be able to return to the game, with Stoddard and Milburn and the best of what the Cooperstown team may develop. It is hoped that within another year the Americans will stand a fair chance of evening the score with our English cousins.

Just sixty-eight years ago June 19 the first game of baseball was played in this country and it was of course the first game of baseball as we know it in the world. It took place at the broken Y. I. and was more of a society event than anything else. Those participating being members of New York's first families and the spectators for the most part the society belles from Gotham. The game as it was started differed quite a bit from our pastime of the present day. There were no gloves, masks, or equipment of the sort. The pitchers tossed the ball underhanded and took pains to place it wherever the batter wished. Fielders, or "scouts" as they were called at the time, were allowed to catch the ball on the first bounce. The first team first scoring twenty-one runs was the winner, regardless of the number of innings played. And after the game the whole company adjourned to a nearby tavern where a dinner was had at the expense of the losing team.

The shrewdest of managers boots one occasionally. Clarke Griffith has a competent fielding team, a classy array of sharpshooters and as good a base-running team as there is in either major league. But he is a trifle shy on batting strength. One more hard hitting outfielder and another infielder with a 300 kick would make the Senators a pennant winning combination. This state of affairs recalls to memory the fact that Griffith permitted two such players to wiggle from his clutch not so many moons ago. Griffith had Bert Niehoff, now starring with the Cincinnati Reds, but died the German because he didn't hit in the first half dozen games. And in 1912 Griffith attached the saucy captain Clarence Walker, the league's leading hitter on this day and date, because Clarence W. didn't measure up to the Griffith requirements. With Walker and Niehoff in the line-up today Griffith would have just the additional batting pency he needs to win the flag.

The rumor that Walter Johnson has considered an offer from the Feds is all off. He has declared himself that this is not a thing in his mind. He plans to stick with Clark Griffith for quite a while yet.

Right of Way for STANDARD

When STANDARD comes along all other brands give way—for STANDARD is real tobacco for real men.

This pure Kentucky tobacco is the great favorite with men of vigor. It is full-bodied and satisfying. It gets its pleasant richness from the natural aging we give it for three to five years.

And that is what keeps its quality up, always the same, no matter what the year's crop may be.

STANDARD

Long Cut Tobacco

has given prime pleasure to manly men for over half a century. A STANDARD man never switches to another brand; he knows he's just losing time and pleasure on a needless experiment. Many brands come and go into the discard—but old STANDARD is still in the lead.

There's a snappy taste to STANDARD that policemen and other big fellows like. It's got that man-size quality about it; not one of those insipid, next-to-nothing tobaccos—but the big King-brand for the he-men on the force.

A week's trial will make you a permanent user of STANDARD—go to it today. Sold everywhere in 5c packages.

Other sizes: 10c, 15c, 25c and 35c Packages.

MAKES AN APPEAL.
The Chicago Tribune makes another appeal to the administration to prepare the nation for any emergency that may arise out of the Mexican situation. In a recent editorial it says:
"As the whole Mexican situation hangs once more in a thread and we face another series of violent convulsions, the Tribune once more begs to call to the attention of the government at Washington the condition of our military forces."
"The state of preparedness which our optimism and our ignorance have made chronic becomes in the face of imminent necessity nothing less than a crime."
"In spite of the possibilities of the last two years, in spite of the constant threat of war, the government and the congress have refused to place an adequate force properly equipped in position to meet our responsibilities."
"The Tribune, upon the best information obtainable, makes honorable exception of the secretary of war, Mr. Garrison, a man of sound sense, who we believe, has been overborne in counsel by the stubborn and misguided pacifism which seems to prevail in the administration foreign policy. We believe he has done what he could against impossible theory."
"But the fact remains that neither at Vera Cruz nor at the base in Texas is our army made up or equipped to meet the probable if not certain eventualities of our situation."
"This is a sickening repetition of the historic folly of our military history, but that will not excuse the president if our soldiers are sacrificed to an unpreparedness foolish and perilous even in time of apparent peace, but inexcusable in the circumstances of the present situation."
"The government has been gambling with fate and if the country pays in unnecessary sacrifice the government's guilt will be clear and the judgment of the nation now and of history later will be heavy."
"Elamark spoke of the luck of fools, drunkards, and the United States. It may be we shall escape the consequences of our folly, by another favor of blind fortune or even by the skill of the president's statecraft. Yet though we may be blessed by such an outcome, we shall not be justified in the neglect to prepare for ill-fortune, and if the government has not lost all sense of its responsibility under an obsession of impossible peace, it should act with the greatest energy and without further delay."
"If the president will not wake, then there are men in congress who should speak and, so far as they are able, act."

TREASURY GUESSING.
In the New York Herald of July 18 the following statement is credited to the secretary of the treasury:
"Mr. McAdoo explained that the shortage of $23,250,000 in the estimated income tax assessments was caused by the failure of about one-third of those persons subject to the tax to make returns to the collectors of their districts."
This is the merest guess. Mr. McAdoo has not, and by no possibility can have, evidence that one-third, or any part of that number, whatever it may be, of those liable for income tax have failed to discharge their legal obligations. The proportion of one-third is arbitrarily assumed for the obvious purpose of making the other guess, of $54,000,000 as the proceeds of the income tax, sound plausible in the face of results.
Chickens are coming home to roost. The unscrupulous manner in which demagogues, for the sake of keeping class hatred alive, have exaggerated the amount and number of private incomes, is producing embarrassing results for the administration. It will be remembered the original Hull guess on the passage of the bill was $30,000,000, considerably more than twice as much as the actual results.
Mr. McAdoo's "estimate" was 74 per cent in excess of the collection, on actual figures. There is nothing to show considerable to say nothing of specific evasions. There is indisputable evidence that a part of the amount already collected at the source came out of the pockets of small stockholders who are within the exemption limit. This amount may be supposed, with much more likelihood or truth, to offset what the Treasury thinks it has failed to collect.
It will be remembered that Mr. McAdoo made, last year, and did not withdraw, a gross charge against the bakers of New York. That charge disproved itself, but he has not abandoned his methods of relying upon his imagination for evidence to support his charges.

Here, in order to set himself right, he is asserting that one-third of the potential income tax payers are, in effect, perjurers and crooks. If he is under the impression that such a proportion of the responsible citizens of the United States, whether they pay income tax or not, are dishonest, he will find few, even in his own party, to share his opinion.
It is entirely possible that a complicated law, on which the United States Treasury has reversed its own interpretations time and again, may have resulted in confused and inaccurate returns in some cases. But that Mr. McAdoo can make up the $2,000,000 of which he was disappointed, out of such cases as these, is too unthinkable to be worth arguing.

STEPHENSON'S VIEWS.
The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin has a very favorable comment on the interview given out by United States Senator Isaac Stephenson on general political affairs in the country. It says:
"In regard to the democratic administration's disposition to hand twenty-five million dollars to the United States of Colombia, as a plaster for that country's dismemberment with reference to the Panama canal, he observed that he has yet to be shown that Colombia is entitled to any such sum. He called attention to the growing feeling in the president's own party that the pending anti-trust bills should not be forced through without careful consideration and that putting them over till fall and adjourning congress not later than the end of July would give business a chance to revive."
"Turning his attention to state affairs he said that the primary idea has been overlooked, that there should be state conventions to suggest candidates, instead of self-suggested candidates, and that there are too many state commissions. He favored the consolidation of commissions, the reduction of the number of employees and the reduction of expenses. He also declared that taxes are too high, and that no member of the legislature who has voted for the excessive tax burden and no one in any way responsible for it should be re-elected or nominated as a candidate for governor. In regard to the senatorship, he remarked that he would say whether or not he would be a candidate when the proper time arrives, but that there is no occasion for hurry."
"The senator impressed those who saw him as being in excellent health and spirits. If he decides to make another run he will have numerous supporters."

While the Rock County and Wisconsin Telephone companies are making their physical connection of system possible, why not have the council pass an ordinance compelling these two companies and the Electric company to use the same line of poles. It is becoming more than a nuisance to have two or three poles, within a few feet of each other, all over the city. As far as that goes the telephone company's might be compelled to put their wires underground down town if the council say so. Think it over.
It appears that William Jennings Bryan failed to read far enough down in that Colombian correspondence when he made his statements to the Senate committee on foreign relations and consequently the Senators feel that they will need ask the Secretary a few questions that may prove a bit troublesome for that advocate of the Twenty Five Million gift to answer.
When a saloon proprietor is found guilty of violation of a law or city ordinance and in danger of losing his license, is it all right for his bartender to make formal application for the permit to run the same saloon? Here is a problem for the city council to solve and one in which the public is interested.
Today is circus day. An unusual crowd of visitors is in the city and it is merely an advance guard of those who will be here on the Fourth when Col. Nonesuch and his cohorts give their wonderful parade.

ADJOURN VALUATION HEARING TO ALLOW AN AUDIT OF BOOKS

Case of Janesville Water Company Before Rate Commission Today Laid Over Three Weeks.

Madison, June 24.—The case involving the valuation of the Janesville water works plant now before the commission was continued today until July 17, to give time for an audit of the books of the company. Auditors will be sent to Janesville at once. The hearing this morning lasted but a few minutes. Attorney M. G. Jeffris represented the water company.

There is a difference of only about $10,000 between the book value of the plant given by the company and the physical valuation made by the engineer.

The principal fight will center on the amount of "going value" to be allowed, and this cannot be determined until the company's books have been audited.

Chairman Roemer said he believed the audit could be finished in less than three weeks, and that this record would give a complete history of the plant.

Mayor James A. Fathens and Councilman Roy Cummings attended the hearing before the state railroad commission at Madison scheduled at ten o'clock this morning to allow the Janesville Water Works Company, P. J. Goodman was unable to attend the hearing having to prepare the streets for circus day.

The water works company will be represented at the meeting, which will be held at the Janesville water works company on the valuation reached by the commission is not known. Some action will alone decide the controversy.

Mayor Fathens and Councilman Cummings returned at three o'clock this afternoon and expressed great satisfaction at the progress made at the hearing. The city officials declared that the commission would send a representative to review to the company's books to determine the going value of the company beside that of the physical valuation.

The company asked for sixty days time to prepare their own statement but the commissioners held that seven days was sufficient time to obtain complete data to arrive at the "going" value of the plant. The city officials also received advice to pay no attention to the bondholders' suit and the commission would continue in the valuation work which should be settled at the next hearing.

RESOLUTION PASSED BY COUNCIL TO BUY LAND FOR STREETS

No Protest Made on Proposed Extension and Widening of Highways. Alvin's Barkpea Seeks License.

On motion of Mayor Fathens a resolution authorizing the acquisition of such property as may be needed for the extension of Elizabeth street, the widening of Palm street, and the extension of South Third street from Forest Park Boulevard to Ringold street, was passed by the city council at its meeting Tuesday. The first ward improvements will be done at an expense of $550 and the third ward extension will cost $344.58, according to the estimate of the board of public works.

No protests were made to the councilmen at their meeting yesterday against the proposed improvements or objections to the present assessment of benefits and damages as already outlined by the board.

The next step to be discussed by the council was the "proper price" to be paid to property owners for the portions of land which will be needed for the streets. In case no satisfactory price can be agreed upon, they will condemn the land by court process and have it sold to the city.

The council expressed a hope that this course would not be necessary.

Courtney Seeks License.
George Courtney, who appeared before the council and asked permission to be allowed to make an application for a liquor license for the saloon now owned by Louis Alwin at fifty-fifth and Broadway streets, was not allowed to make an application. Courtney is Alwin's associate.

The council declared there was no objection to Courtney or other person from making an application, but that action would be taken only after the council had heard the arguments of the saloon owners and the city.

The council also considered a petition for a license for the saloon now owned by Louis Alwin at fifty-fifth and Broadway streets, who are Alwin's associates.

The council declared there was no objection to Courtney or other person from making an application, but that action would be taken only after the council had heard the arguments of the saloon owners and the city.

Routine Business.
The report of W. W. Dulin, from the city streets, showing a total of 10,000 yards of rubble sold to the city, was accepted. The city clerk, C. A. N. Jones, for lot one Pease addition of the south side of Fourth avenue; Mrs. H. McMaugh, South Main street and W. Noonan, the south side of Vista avenue, north.

Councilman Goodman was ordered to construct sidewalk across Cottage place on south side of Vista avenue and across public alley midway between Logan street and Cottage place. On motion meeting adjourned until Friday.

The youths enjoyed the day in playing baseball, using the swings and climbing on the slides. The picnic was a success and the interest of the occasion. Credit is due Fred Sheldon for his efforts in making the day an amusing one, both for the old and young. The sack race of the afternoon was won by Wallace Bull. Master Wallace and Ralph Hammond captured first prize in the three-legged race. Sherwood Sheldon carried off the honor in the boys' relay race. Margaret Eller was awarded first in the fifty-yard dash for girls over fourteen. Under that age and over twelve, the honors went to Dean Kishner. The boys' relay race, Ruth Barrett threw the baseball the farthest and won first prize. The picnic broke up at four o'clock.

BIG CIRCUS IN TOWN AMUSES THE CROWDS

Hagenbeck-Wallace Combination Late in Reaching City—Give Fine Parade and Good Performance.

There was many a late breakfast this morning and some small boys went without any just because the circus was late in reaching Janesville. There were later luncheons and in some homes it was a meal dispensed with, owing to the fact that the morning parade did not reach the downtown section of the city until after twelve.

The delay was all due to a late start from Kenosha, their last stand, owing to last night's storm and the streets were already well filled with spectators before the long haul to the city began shortly after seven.

It was a fine parade, the animals and horses being unusually excited, and the bands discoursed sweet music to the content of the small boys and the grown ups that blocked the sidewalks and streets.

With the parade over, the show grounds became the objective point. Street cars were crowded to overflowing and many clung to the hand-guards and railings. Everything was in readiness to receive the great crowds. The side shows did a land office business and a tall, slim young man, dressed in glowing terms the merits of his attraction and the wonders to be seen on the "inside" for the price "ten cents." The snake lady looked down on the crowd with an approving crowd. The giant shuffled awkwardly in his massive chair and inquired of the ball score. The side show bands played as only circus bands can play and the general verdict was to "see it."

It was shortly before two o'clock when the doors to the big show were opened, and for almost an hour a constant stream of humanity poured into the "big top."

Performance by thirty minutes a concert of classic and popular music was rendered by Prof. A. Massey's band of sixty-eight soloists. The big show started with all the latest in the performance began at the conclusion of the musical concert and canteen.

Another performance will be given tonight by the Hagenbeck-Wallace show. The doors to the big show will be opened at seven o'clock and the performance will begin an hour later for the convenience of its patrons the circus management have in operation a downtown ticket office today at the People's Drug company. The circus is scheduled to depart shortly after midnight for Rockford, Ill.

No time was lost by the circus men when once they had reached the city. The cook stove is the first thing that interests the folks early in the morning. Napoleon said that an army moved on its stomach, and the same may be said of a great circus organization. And so this morning the first thing that nose its way into the tent was the one in which 17 chefs preside. In the "cook house" there are 22 feet of steel cooking ranges, and half an hour after the arrival of the first wagon on the show grounds, the first fumes were issuing from a dozen little smokestacks. Jimmy Davis, who presides over the culinary department of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, said that 1,000 people were on hand for breakfast. They wanted their "coffee" and as well as their griddle cakes, and more than 3,000 of the latter were served.

Breakfast over the work of erecting the tented city began in earnest. There were no halts or perplexing delays. The ponderous poles were raised into the air with a celerity that was amazing. Intricate tangles of rope and canvas appeared to fall into place. And in a remarkable short time the once barren lot was a bustling, hustling little city with a population of 1,100 souls which was encased many thousand more by spectators who thronged every available spot to watch the workingmen.

With bands trumpeting, horses prancing, clowns shouting and balloons "tooting" the monster street pageant of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus moved through the downtown streets shortly after noon without a halt. Thousands lined the street curbing, and crowded the windows in an effort to catch a glimpse of the circus finery. And what they saw was not disappointing. Hundreds of horses galloped in silver, silver, silver, and brass elicited interest. And the funny clowns afforded merriment to the little tots who clapped their hands in childish glee at the antics of the clowns. The clowns made grimaces from their seats, perched high on the top of wagons. "It was some nice trade" said one small boy, and after all, everyone seems to be a kid when the circus comes to town.

IF HISTORY REPEATS CORNELL WILL WIN POUGHKEEPSIE RACE

It has not been defeated twice in succession. The crew winning this year's regatta will enjoy the title of intercollegiate rowing champion of America. The participants in the event will be Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin and Washington. The three strong eastern colleges that will not take part in the regatta are Yale, Princeton and Harvard, and all of these have this year been humiliated by Cornell. Wisconsin and Washington represent the best in the west.

Columbia Has Chance. The sentiment of rowing men seems to be that either Syracuse or Columbia will be the crew to give Cornell the fight. Columbia has been the runner-up with unusual regularity, but has frequently been prevented from winning by the physical inferiority of its men. Coach Rice admits this year that his eight is not physically as powerful as he would have it. For this reason he has worked his oarsmen heavily ever since their arrival at Poughkeepsie. Rice says he has a good sprinting crew, but he does not feel so sure of them if they are pulled over the entire four miles. In other words, a race like that of last year, in which Cornell and Columbia fought each other nearly the entire distance, would be fatal to Columbia's chances. A year ago Cornell and Columbia were each other out in the early stages of the race and the Syracuse crew, which had been following the pace, came along with a rush and won the race.

There is a great deal of speculation as to the chances of Syracuse to win the big race. The Salt City collegians have lost only two members of last year's victorious eight, but some observers think Syracuse might as well have lost half its crew.

Today's Edgerton News

Edgerton, June 24.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at eight-thirty in St. Joseph's Catholic church, when Esther, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. McIntyre was married to James Francis O'Brien, from Madison. They were attended by Agnes McIntyre, a sister of the bride, and Leslie O'Brien, brother of the groom.

The bride was very prettily dressed in a gown of white crepe de chine trimmed with lace and pearls, and wore a tulle veil in bonnet effect. The bridesmaid wore blue silk.

Miss Grace Devine played Mendelssohn's wedding march, and "O, Promise Me," was beautifully sung by Miss Rose Stewart.

They left this morning for a trip to Chicago and points west. Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien will make their home for the future on a farm near Madison.

J. F. Keller and Henry Volts went to Chicago today on business.

Mrs. H. Hyland went to Stoughton yesterday to visit relatives.

Miss Maryellen Wesendonk spent today in Janesville.

Miss Olga North left for Ludington, Michigan, yesterday, where she will visit relatives for a week before going to Trenton, New Jersey, for the summer.

The Misses Kathleen Culton and Gracelyn Tallard spent yesterday in Stoughton with friends.

L. C. Whittier spent Tuesday in Madison, on business.

Miss Hazel Farman is in Stoughton visiting relatives for a week.

Wm. Barrett and family spent today in Stoughton with relatives.

Miss L. Brunner, who is attending summer school at Madison, is here visiting Miss Mae Spencer for a few days.

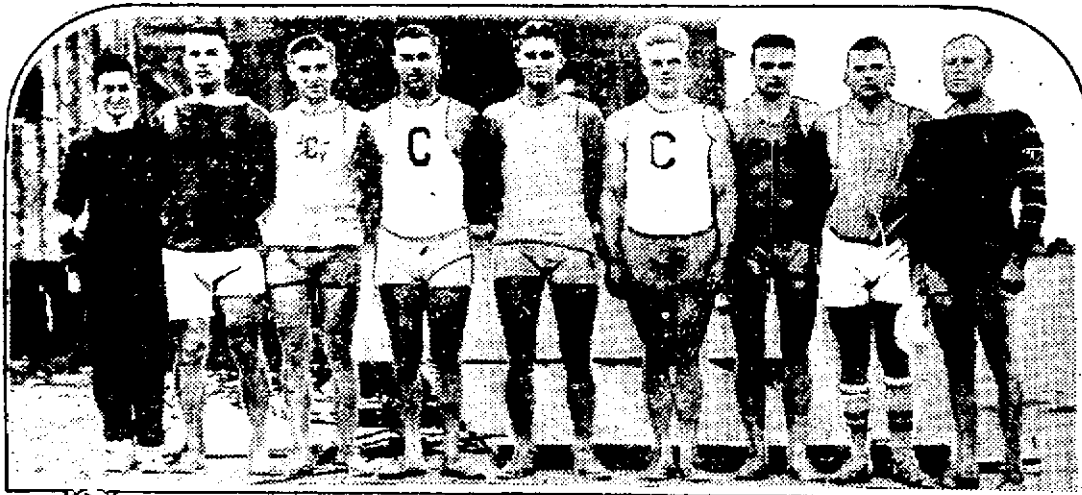

W. T. Atwell spent yesterday in Madison on business.

Mrs. Geo. Lund went to Janesville today to bring back Leo Johnson, who has been suffering in the Mercy Hospital for the past six weeks with a broken leg.

One of the best base ball games ever scheduled in Edgerton will be played Sunday in the Cubs' ball diamond between the Edgerton Cubs and Willson's Monarchs. The battery for the Monarch team are Voight and Bartz, and the Cub battery are Schumaker and Sumbe.

Charles Lamb's Eyes Remarkable. Charles Lamb is described as having glittering eyes, strangely dissimilar in color, one being hazel, the other having specks of gray in the iris, as you see red spots in the blood vessels.

Useful Spirit. Efforts to be permanently useful must be uniformly joyous—a spirit of sunshine—grateful from very gladness, beautiful because bright—Carlyle.

The Cornell eight.

As June 26, the day of the big intercollegiate regatta, approaches, confidence becomes more marked in the Cornell eight. Coach Courtney expresses himself as well pleased with the showing of the crew. The other colleges that will take part in the Poughkeepsie regatta are Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Wisconsin and Columbia.

BE confident when the other fellow says, "Thanks, old man; I will."

The "Monarch" size Tom Moore he takes from you impresses him favorably by its size and firm, "springy" feel. The Sumatra wrapper is satin smooth.

He lights. His mild Tom Moore draws freely. The aroma is full. The ash is white and firm.

His judgment of cigars proves to him that Tom Moore has every quality a man can expect in a 10c cigar.

FAY LEWIS & BROS. CO. MILWAUKEE.

as to have lost Thurston, star stroke of the Syracuse crew, is now pretty much of an unknown quantity. Last year Syracuse did the unprecedented thing of sending a crew to Poughkeepsie that had not had any racing experience against outside colleges, not even a dual race, yet won the big event.

Quakers an Enigma. The Pennsylvania eight is an enigma. The Quakers are badly handicapped from the start. Not only are they using a new rowing system, taught by an English coach, but they have lost Shoemaker, their star stroke oarsman, who had to give up rowing just before the Carnegie lake regatta on account of typhoid fever. The crew started the season in splendid fashion by winning from the powerful navy eight, but then misfortune came, and it is the consensus of rowing opinion that the crew is not as good now as when it rowed the navy. The other college coaches are much concerned over the introduction of English methods by the Pennsylvania crew, and are doubly anxious to beat the Quakers on that account.

Western Crews Handicapped. Washington has the heaviest eight on the river. The men from the Pacific coast are badly handicapped. At home they are unable to get the sort of rowing practice which their eastern rivals enjoy, nor do their rowing candidates enter college with scholastic rowing experience, another advantage of the eastern crews. On top of this add a four-day trip from Seattle to Poughkeepsie and the handicaps of the Pacific coast crew are manifest.

Conditions under which Wisconsin competes are much the same. This year the Badgers have not had any outside competition and they must journey nearly half way across the continent to compete. No wonder each of the eastern university crews expresses the hope that next to itself it would welcome a victory by Washington or Wisconsin.

The Soft Answer.

It is hard telling just what attitude to take with regard to the allegations and alleged misstatements and unkind remarks of other people. It does not pay to be too thin skinned. Besides, the other fellow may have been misquoted; and even if he said it, this saying sometimes does not make it so. Ignoring a thing of that sort brings it to the quickest death in the world and turns bad feeling into good. There is a book that says: "A soft answer

P. A. makes men smoke hungry

Just you get a whiff of "the national joy smoke" and it's dollars to doughnuts you beat it 'cross lots to the nearest store that sells tobacco—and stock up! The flavor and aroma of Prince Albert has got 'em all backed off the boards. It sure will hit the spot with you. Get the drift of that?

PRINCE ALBERT

just does all that we say it will do. It can't bite your tongue and it can't parch your throat. All this is because P. A. is made by a patented process that cuts out the bite! Why, this process has simply revolutionized smoking tobacco.

Prince Albert rolls up the bulkiest makin's cigarette you or any other man ever smoked. It puts the jolt of joy right into your system.

You can just do "makin's" sunrise to sunset and have a lot of fun. Why, P. A. in a cigarette is absolutely a revelation. You go to it!

Buy Prince Albert everywhere; in the tippy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; also in pound and half-pound humidor.

Platform Declaration of Republican Convention

Reasonable Protective Tariff.
There is a general stagnation of business throwing thousands of working men out of employment and reducing the hours of labor for a still larger number, thereby diminishing their earnings. We charge that this condition has been brought about by an unwise tariff legislation. We favor a reasonable protective tariff, scientifically adjusted, to encourage business and to protect our laborers, farmers, miners and manufacturers against the products of cheaper labor of foreign countries.

Railway Capitalization.
We favor the control of railway capitalization by the United States government to prevent over-capitalization and the misuse of corporate funds and for the reassurance of small investors.

Party Conventions.
We believe that political parties are necessary to guard the rights and liberties of the people. Party conventions are necessary to maintain party organizations and to give to the people an opportunity to assemble and discuss their needs, to select their party platform and to select candidates who will stand on the platform of the party. We, therefore, demand the re-establishment by law of party conventions, reserving to the voters the right to elect delegates by the Australian ballot.

Substantial Retrenchment.
The cost of state government has increased more than 400 per cent since 1900, while the population has increased only 12 per cent. This condition is alarming and is causing widespread concern among all classes of citizens. It raises the question whether the state has a moral right to use its taxing power to an extent approaching confiscation of property in times of peace. We declare these large expenditures to be a reckless and wasteful use of the taxpayer's money and demand immediate and substantial retrenchment. Every branch of the state government should be fairly investigated and reduced with a view of bringing the cost as low as possible without injury to the state.

Dangerous Bureaucracy.
We believe in constitutional government and in concentrating the responsibility for government in the hands of the constitutional officers of the state who are elected by the people and are directly responsible to the people. The delegation of power to boards and commissions which are out of reach of the people is building up a wasteful, red-tape and dangerous bureaucracy that is destructive of the fundamentals of government and the American principle of home rule. We demand the abolition of all useless commissions, retaining only such as experience has proven are of value to the people. We especially condemn the legislative reference bureau and its present management as being responsible for much unwise legislation.

State University.
We are friends of the university and wish to maintain it as a national institution of the highest standard. We demand, however, that the expenses of that institution be cut down to a sum that the people can afford to pay, and that its disbursements be publicly accounted for. We demand that the university be kept out of politics. We demand, further, that non-resident students be compelled to pay a tuition fee that represents the amount expended by the people of the state for their education. There is a persistent rumor circulated by the press and by men who claim to have knowledge of the fact that important members of the faculty are not devoting all their time to work in the university and that they are otherwise employed under pay; that character building in the student is neglected because of the almost constant absence of important teachers; that the doctrine of socialism is being inculcated by certain teachers; all of which is objectionable, if it is true. We favor the principle of "Lehrfreiheit." The truth shall and must be taught. Socialism is not a demonstrative proof and we regard it as destructive of every principle of government that is dear to the American people and the mind of the student should be kept free from its misleading theories.

We demand a full, fair and complete legislative investigation of the university. If the charges that are made are found to be untrue, the institution and its faculty should be acquitted in language that will not be misunderstood. If found true, we demand that such conditions be corrected in the interest of the citizens, taxpayers, students and of the university itself. The true friend of the university is the candid friend.

One Educational Board.
We favor the placing of all state educational institutions in charge of a single board, to the end that all moneys available for their support will be equitably distributed and that there be co-operation in the interests of education and to make successful management of these institutions possible. We believe in matters of education the state ought to lend its aid and extend its principal concern to the local schools where the masses receive no further education than is obtainable therein. We demand that the local school be given first consideration in the educational encouragement of the state, in educational affairs we believe in justice to all and special favors to none.

Good Roads, Fair Revision.
We favor the good roads movement, but we denounce the present system as wasteful and extravagant and unproductive of good results, and we demand a revision of the present law by which the people's money may be expended by the local authorities under competent supervision.

Reforestation.
The scheme of reforestation as attempted by this state is both costly and unwise and should be discontinued. Reforestation of our cutover, non-agricultural land is a proper enterprise for the United States government to engage in. It can pay no returns for one hundred years or more and it is therefore unfair to burden the people of this state with heavy taxes to carry out this project for the benefit of the nation at large.

Water Powers.
We demand that the laws governing water powers shall be so amended as to make the development of water powers possible.

Initiative, Referendum and Recall.
We call the attention of the people to the proposed amendment to our state constitution. They provide for the initiative, referendum and recall. These propositions are destructive of representative government and have been absolutely discredited by experience elsewhere and should be voted down.

Constitutional Amendments.
The amendment removing constitutional limitations from the insurance commissioner is vicious and dangerous. It will divest the people of the protection they now enjoy under the constitution against the incurring of extravagant public debts and liabilities and may in the end cost the taxpayer large sums of money. We urge the people of Wisconsin for their own safety, to vote down all pending constitutional amendments at the next general election.

William J. Burns.

Detective William J. Burns came in for some rather unfavorable criticism at the recent convention of police chiefs at Grand Rapids, Mich. Essay on the Barber Pole.
We see the barber pole and we know it is advertising a business, but little do we know what the stripes signify. In the early days barbers did the bleeding for the community and surgeons were not as plentiful as now. The first thing thought necessary was down to the time of George Washington's death, was that any patient should be bled. Tap him and take a few ounces of blood from him, no matter how weak he may be. When Washington was at the last gasp the fools bled him. Well, the red stripes on the barber pole meant the red ribbon bandages bound over the wounds caused by bleeding people. That's all. When they got through with a plethora man, of full habit, and had tapped him like a hard maple tree in March, he was patched up and bled again till his legs and trunk looked like a much-gartered leg.

It may be well to add that the barbers are still bleeding men, but in another way.

Uncle Abner.
It beats all how many men seem to get ahead and make a lot of money in this world without knowing a darn thing about algebra or chemistry.

There ain't no faith that equals that of the fellow who plants a kitchen garden and hopes to save a lot of money by it.

When a feller stops to consider that there is enough wire in a hoop-skirt to fence a 46-acre lot, it seems as though it's going to be pretty expensive to have 'em come back in style.

A feller who has got a poker face is pretty middlin' sure to succeed in a business way.

There was a man in our town, And he was wondrous wise; He bought his wife a new silk gown, In way of a surprise.

He paid just $19.98. He told his wife in glee, She looked at him in deep disgust, And then she said, said she:

"I could have bought that dress down town For $7.82. Why don't you read the ads, my dear, As really wise men do?"

If you forget to hand the waiter a little something it is a sure sign that you are going to have a little slip down the back of your neck the next time you call.

If you see a man pawing around with his front hoof like a horse trying to find something to put it on, it is a sign that he often dallies in front of the polished mahogany.

If your wife begins early in the morning to pay you compliments and forgets to hand you one for getting home late the night before, it is a sign that she is going to have a new hat.

If you see a particular friend of yours sailing along in your direction in a new automobile, it is a sure sign that he is not going to ask you to jump in and have a ride.

Now, millionaires' daughters seem to be original at all. Most of them elope with their fathers' chauffeurs. There should be some hot fighting in the Mexican state of Tabasco.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A CURE FOR QUEERNESS.

ONCE upon a time there was a girl who had the reputation of being very retiring and a bit queer.

As a result of this reputation all her friends and acquaintances treated her differently from the way they treated ordinary folks. They were conscious of her queerness, and that consciousness affected their manner. Needless to say, she did not grow any less queer.

Then one day she came into this girl's life a very wise lady. She liked the girl, she was much with her, and the girl responded to her presence like a flower to sunshine. She opened up, she became happier, at ease, mistress of herself. At first with her new friend, then with others.

"You have worked a miracle," everyone said to the wise lady. "However did you do it?"

And the wise lady smiled. "All I did," she said, "was to forget she was queer and treat her just like other people. She wasn't really different, you know, only shy. All she needed was to be taken for granted and to be treated naturally."

Differentness and diffidence are always being confused.

And the result is that those very people who particularly need the sunshine of natural friendliness are driven still more into themselves by the chill of formal and artificial treatment.

Try treating one of these shy, diffident folks exactly as you'd treat anyone else and see if it doesn't change and improve them. Of course, one dose of the treatment will not cure any more than one dose of medicine will make a patient well.

Very wealthy or famous people are another class impalpable, but real, barrier between them and the common people. They try to be extra nice to them on account of it; others are distant and disagreeable in their anxiety not to trifle; and even those who do not run to either extreme cannot be entirely natural because of their consciousness of that impalpable barrier.

In one of the sweetest books ever written, a great financier comes into contact with a young girl who does not know he is wealthy but thinks he is friendless and lonesome. She tries to cheer him up by being especially kind to him, and the delight he takes in her simple, natural friendliness is really touching.

Criminals, too, I think, suffer from people's fixed notion that they are a class apart. It seems to me that one thing that would help them more than sympathy or money would be to treat them naturally.

Let me tell you a secret. After all, good people and bad people, rich people and poor people, great and plain, young and old, shy and fearless, are all just folks. Learn to treat them as just folks and you have found the royal road to man's heart.

And if you are ever afraid of anyone, try to remember what Sam Walter Foss, the beloved poet laureate of our common people, said, "You'll find he's just scared of you as you are scared of him."

Milk as Thickening Food.

Cream of Cowpea Soup.—One tablespoonful of butter (all measurements are level), one tablespoonful flour, two cups milk, one teaspoonful sugar, one cupful cooked cowpeas (green or dried), a few drops of onion juice, salt.

Melt the butter, add the flour and cook thoroughly, being careful not to brown it. Add the milk and bring the mixture to the boiling point. Put the peas through a sieve, add peas and seasonings to the milk and reheat. If too thick add milk or water.

Baker milk pudding, which is another good way of using skim milk, is too often kept for dessert. Few people realize how truly nourishing it is, and that if it is not made too sweet or is not too highly flavored it can be used as the chief dish at a meal, providing the family likes it. Make it moist by using only a little of the starchy substance, rice, corn meal or farina, with which the milk is usually combined, and cook it in a very slow oven. Farmers' Bulletin 413 speaks of these puddings and of their nutritive value and gives many other valuable suggestions, about keeping and using milk.

Poor Man's Rice Pudding.—One quart of milk, half cup of rice, or less, half cup of sugar, or less, half teaspoon of salt, half teaspoon of powdered cinnamon.

Put all the ingredients together in an earthen baking dish and cook in a very slow oven for three hours, stirring occasionally during the first hour.

This pudding has approximately as much tissue-forming material in it as the soup for which the recipe is given above. Scalloped potatoes can be made in which the same way except that a little butter would be used in place of the sugar and a larger amount of potato can be used than of rice.

In this article milk has been referred to chiefly in connection with its value as a tissue former. Nothing has been said of the fat and mineral matter it contains. When these are taken into consideration, it makes an even better showing. See Farmers' Bulletin 413, page 14. There you will find that all the food in a cup of milk is equal to that in three ounces of beef or in two eggs.

Quit.

"Was your husband cool when you told him there was a burglar in the house?" asked Mrs. Hammer. "Cool," replied Mrs. Gabb. "I should say he was cool. Why, his teeth chattered."

WEDNESDAY.

"Offering prizes for the children few ketch flies is all right, but giving them prizes for clean up their breedin' places is better yet."

Peggy & Company

Country Life Seems Conducive to Good Times, When There Are Tennis Courts and an Auto.

"Dear mother," writes Peggy. "I am having a most glorious time and how I wish you were here. The Browns have two dandy tennis courts and we play the whole day through."

"We have coursed all over this part of the country in their machine, sometimes stopping to have dinner at the cunningest little country hotels—it is glorious. Jim—that's Sarah's brother—treats me royally and he's such a nice young man. I really want you to meet him sometime."

"I feel very wicked enjoying myself so when I know that you must be lard at work at home and it's so warm in the city. But I feel so much better already that I'm sure when I get home I will be able to let you have a nice long rest. Promise me not to work too hard and write to your loving daughter. PEGGY."

After reading the letter through, mother felt a vague disappointment without being quite conscious at once of what it was. And then suddenly it came to her. Peggy had said nothing about milking. As far as mother could see, there was nothing in tennis or courting that would awaken in Peggy the latent—oh, very latent!—housewife instincts.

Peggy had motored and romped the courts a great deal at home, but neither had enhanced in any way her enjoyment of housework. The part about having dinner at the cunningest little country hotels was a bit more cheering. Some slight—trifling—culinary activities seemed to suggest itself here. Peggy's interest in the cunningest hostesses may have been aroused by the tidiness of the landlady and her deftness at serving the meals.

Mother put the letter aside and planned an answer to Peggy wherein she would recommend that her darling daughter visit a few cunning country kitchens.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

If the clothes wringer becomes worn and will not wring dry, wrap it with maslin and it will do as well as when new.

Run the top of a cake with a little flour. This prevents frosting from running off.

Salt will remove the taste of bitter medicine from the mouth.

Never wring linen with the clothes wringer. This causes wrinkles which are hard to iron out.

THE TABLE.

Braised Fresh Beef's Tongue.—Wash the tongue and boil for half an hour. Trim away the root and the tough edges. Fry a sliced onion in three tablespoonfuls of dripping. Strain out the onion and lay the tongue in the frying pan. Cook ten minutes, turning twice. Remove to your covered roaster; lay upon the grating and dredge with flour. Pour the fat over it; add a large cupful of boiling water and cook, closely covered, for an hour and a half, basting four times. Put into boiling water while you skim off the fat, and thicken with browned flour. Season with paprika, onion juice, salt and half a cupful of strained tomato sauce. Dish up the tongue and pour the gravy over it; pass around horseradish sauce with it.

SWEETS FOR ALL.

A most delicious nut cheese which may be used as a confection or as a filling for sandwiches is the following:

Nut Cheese.—Wash half a pound of stoned prunes, mix them with a half pound of seeded raisins, half a pound of stoned dates and the same quantity of washed figs, one-quarter of a pound of blanched almonds and one pound of pecans, all put through the meat chopper and well mixed. Add the juice of two oranges, kneading the mixture with the hands; then pack into glass tumblers and cover with paraffin paper and keep in a cool place. When wanted, the cheese may be cut in thin slices with a sharp knife. Hickory nuts or black walnuts may be used instead of other nuts if they are cheaper in the locality.

Divinity Candy.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, add a half cup of corn syrup, one-half cupful of water and cook until it threads, then pour over the beaten white of an egg and beat until creamy. Add a cup of walnut meats and mark off in squares.

Chocolate Fudge.—Cook together two cupfuls of sugar, a third of a cupful of corn syrup, a half cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a square of chocolate. When a soft ball is made when a little is dropped in water, remove and add a teaspoonful of vanilla and a half cupful of nuts, if so desired. When a little cool, stir until it begins to get firm, then pour out into a well greased dish and mark off before it gets too hard. If one likes some other flavor than chocolate, a cupful of maple syrup can be used instead of one of the cupfuls of sugar and a little mapleine added for flavor.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fourteen years old, but look to be about sixteen.

(1) At night is it better to sleep with a pillow or without one?

(2) Would be a good way for me to have my picture taken? I am a lump; every one I see marks me about by pretty neck.

(3) Should I you go with a girl who, when you tell her a secret, goes and tells her beaux about it and then you get teased?

I want to confide a few little secrets about my affairs, and I don't like to tell them to her (my chum) because she will tell them to follow. I told her once that I wouldn't go with the fellow I was twenty and she laughed and went and told a boy who always asks me to go places and I refuse and he teases me. Will you please comfort me as to these things? SWEET FAIRY.

(4) It is claimed that one grows straighter and sleeps more dreamlessly without a pillow. A high pillow is injurious and is apt to make one round-shouldered. A very flat soft pillow would do no harm. I have it taken in a modest fashion, and try to look natural, my dear—not fussed up. You can show a modest amount of neck in the picture. Don't have it look naked, though.

(5) You can go with her and keep your affairs to yourself, can't you? Just don't tell her anything you don't want repeated. That will teach you self-control—something that I don't value as you grow older. Don't mind being teased about anything harmless. Just laugh when anybody starts it and act as if you enjoyed it, too.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: To settle an argument, will you kindly answer

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

A damp wind blew up from the river. The fog was closing in. Down the hill, whistling cheerily came a boy of about fourteen summers; midway over the bridge he stopped beside a boy of about his own age.

"Hello! Dick. Why weren't you at school this afternoon?"

Tom made no response, but the troubled expression on his face spoke more eloquently than words.

"You're a chump for skipping school the way you do. You'll get in bad. Your folks use you too good for you to use them like that." Tom watched his classmate walk happily away. He would get in bad. He was in bad already. On that afternoon he had entered the boathouse belonging to his father and uncle and taken the copper wire, hiding it under the bridge, and promising Gus, the known character of cover of darkness he would return and carry it to the hut in the quarry. They were to sell it to the junkman and divide the profits. He wondered now why he had done this. Dad was liberal in his allowance. He had not wanted to do it, but he had not been brave enough to stand Gus' taunts that was a sissy, afraid to face his school to break open his father's boathouse, afraid to take the wire. He knew now what his mother meant when she talked about two kinds of bravery. He sincerely wished he had been of the other brand. He had been of his mother. Tears rushed to his eyes. From the other side of the bridge an officer was approaching. His heart beat in a strange way. It was the drunk officer, "Come with me, Tom Ducker. You're wanted at the juvenile court." Tom followed like one in a horrid nightmare. Things seemed to spin around him. One thing was clear in his mind. He hoped he would not meet any of his schoolmates. Turning the corner he came face to face with Lydia Snyder, the girl who sat behind him in school. The girl who did his language for him while he worked her arithmetic for her. Nothing mattered now.

The first person his gaze rested upon as he entered the court room was his mother. He burst into blinding tears. It was the first time his mother had seen him in this capacity. "Tommy," she could get no farther. The judge looked at the tear-stained eyes, the quivering mouth of the boy as he plied him with questions. It was not long since he had been a boy himself. He understood the hearts of boys better than most men.

"Send the boy home with his mother," he said, and he had patiently listened to the officer's recital. It will be responsible for him," said the gentle-faced woman. "This will not happen again."

"It is well for you that it was your father's boathouse you entered," said the judge. "He is giving you another chance. One mistake does not mar a person's life, but do not repeat it."

"If you let me go, judge," pleaded Tommy, "I will never skip school again. I will never keep bad company. Honest I won't."

At the door the judge called after them: "One bad apple will spoil a barrel of sound fruit. See that you stick to your word."

Have you a boy?

California Ranch Life Not All Joy Says a Former Janesville Resident

Ranch life in California has its drawbacks as well as its brilliant possibilities, according to A. W. Thorpe, a former Janesville resident, who is now located on a farm near Witchee Creek. In a letter to the Gazette he tells of some of the irrigation troubles he experienced on a place near San Diego.

Mr. Thorpe will be remembered by a large number of Janesville citizens, especially third warders, who knew him when he was motorman on the Forest Park car of the local street railroad company when that branch was in operation. His letter from sunny California is most interesting and is given below.

Editor Gazette: I will try and tell the readers of the Gazette about California, or anyway the parts of it we see as we drive about. Now we are on a ranch near Witchee Creek, but before we came to here we rented a small ranch near San Diego, then had to leave when the water for irrigation played out. They claim to have water to last through seven dry years, but guess it must have been the tail end of the last year. We moved in and started to farm but as could be and one day we set several pipes to run down to soak up some ground to the south; then the water stopped running onto our ground. And such water! If it ran through a hose a short time the end of the hose spouted a long green beard, and smell—wheew! It is a bad one.

Had to boil all the water before we could use it even for the dog. Then it got so thick you could cut it off by the yard like ribbon; then as our neighbor irrigated more of his ranch, the water got so thick it was like a solid mass of green. The ranchers were all short for water and the ranch we rented being at the end of a short branch pipe line there was no juice left for us.

New we are working by the month up here on the mountains at Witchee Creek. The country here is all wrinkled up into all kinds of shapes and rough as a hog's back. There is some good soil, a lot of poor soil and still more than will only grow hardy plants and rattlesnakes. There are some very large ranches. Warner's ranch is 40,000 acres, the Santa Ysabel 18,000 acres; then there is one of 1,200 acres and all the way down to one acre. All we know about Warner's ranch is that there is a hot spring some place on it, also some cottages for people who think they are getting a drinking water that it warmed in the internal regions.

The Santa Ysabel ranch is a dairy, stock and hog ranch. They have their own creamery and manufacture butter for the small towns around here, then ship cream to San Diego by truck. One hundred and fifty cows is the best they ever milk. "Jush, girls! There is not a woman on the ranch, all the work is done by men. The manager and several men are Swiss, the rest are Mexicans and Indians, with the complexion of a tan shoe. They wear wide hats, leather chaps and all wild west things like the exception of the six-shooter, which is seldom seen. They also carry a clothes line coiled up on their big saddle, but have never seen them use it. There is quite a little fruit raised here and the finest kind, too, as it does not have to be irrigated—just keep the soil well cultivated. There is no citrus fruit up here, but the finest kind of peaches, grapes, pears, walnuts and some apples, but they grow better higher up in the mountains. One drawback in the fruit business is the high freight rates; the other is the commission men who generally make a mistake and keep the net proceeds and send the rancher the commission. But even at that they do pretty well for so many people stop with their automobiles and buy fruit.

The climate up here is fine (elevation 2,736 feet). There was three weeks of hot weather last summer when the thermometer hovered around 90, but it takes hot weather to ripen fruit and you never hear of a case of sunstroke. If we remember right it is sometimes hot in Wisconsin, and that heat that kills, too.

We never have any tornadoes to play checkers with the farm buildings and nail a hog to a tree with a plow. During the past winter we had weeks and weeks of the finest kind of weather—rains came just right to make the commission men who generally at Witchee Creek the upper slopes of the volcanic mountains, ten miles away, would be white with snow, but it did not stay on long. We are twenty-five miles from a railroad and have not heard a train whistle in over a year. It is so quiet evenings we can hear the stars twinkle.

The freight business is done by motor trucks at a rate of forty to seventy cents a hundred depending on the season. The passenger trains are big auto stages that carry all the way up to seventeen people—depends on the size. The passenger rates are pretty high, being $2.50 for single trip and $4.50 round trip of one hundred miles.

We don't go to San Diego very often. One big stage makes the round trip from San Diego to Julian, sixty miles each way, every day. Then in another article we will tell more about the people here, also the scenery at Witchee Creek and the mountains near here as we have been over nearly all the trails. We have a camp outfit and drive over this time for I expect to have pictures so that whoever reads the articles can see the different views they read about nearly as we see them. A. W. THORPE.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT PARTY, DESPITE HEAT

Nearly a Hundred Couples Dance at Senior Function—Occasion Was Very Pretty Event.

The annual senior party given last night at the Assembly Hall was one of the prettiest functions of its kind in many years. Almost a hundred couples attended the event and danced merrily for twenty numbers to the delightful music furnished by Hatch's light-piece orchestra, with xylophone player. The extreme heat was noticeable, but offered no check to the evening's enjoyment.

The hall was magnificently decorated in white and gold, with branches placed here and there on the walls. White streamers ran from the four walls to the center of the hall, where a large, framework, covered with golden cloth, forming a cylindrical effect, had been erected.

The program was made up of little arrangements of a diamond shape to represent the 1914 senior class pin. On the front was a reprint of the pin, with the colors, maroon and gold, neatly embossed. The program consisted of sixteen numbers with four extras. Dancing was in order from nine until one. The event was a success, and the committee, composed of Karl Frick, Charles Peterson and chairmen, Edward Atwood and Louis Hayes, are to be complimented for their time spent and efforts given toward making the evening a pleasant one for the younger set of the city.

Many alumni were present, although the attendance was not entirely satisfactory. It is presumed the heat acted as the cause for the old grads failing to put in an appearance.

APPLY SULPHUR IF SKIN BREAKS OUT SULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA USE LIKE COLD CREAM TO STOP ITCHING

Any breaking out or irritation on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur cream, says a noted dermatologist.

He informs us that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin. Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in Eczema, proves very welcome. This is published for Walter Luther Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Advertisement.

While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin. Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded, particularly in Eczema, proves very welcome. This is published for Walter Luther Dodge Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Advertisement.

FIRST USE OF RESINOL STOPS TERRIBLE ITCH

Jan. 27, 1914: "I suffered over eight years with eczema. It started in one little place and kept spreading until it covered my hands. My hands looked like they had been burned by fire and peeled off in large pieces until they were only raw flesh. I was told it was eczema. It itched and burned me so that I could not sleep at night. I tried all sorts of eczema salves and one prescription after another but nothing gave me any relief until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and after the first application my hands never itched or burned again, and were well in one week. I want every sufferer from eczema to know that they can find a cure in Resinol." (Signed) Miss Ethel Scott, Milstead, Ga.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for nineteen years, for all sorts of skin troubles, pimples, dandruff, sores, ulcers, burns, etc. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Janesville Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Janesville readers.

J. W. Roberts, 22 Park St., Janesville, Wis., says: "For years I had trouble from irregular action of my kidneys. I had to get up at night and in the morning I felt tired out. My back ached and I had sore spots over my kidneys. I could hardly straighten up after stooping over. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the Gazette, so I used some. I want to say that they relieved the pains and put my kidneys in fine shape. I don't have to get up at night and I feel fine in the morning. It is about ten years ago that I first used Doan's Kidney Pills and I have taken them off and on since. They have kept my kidneys and back free from pain."

The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth

A Prima Donna of the Past.
Dorcas and Merry paused for a moment before a flight of steps which led up to what had once been a fine private residence. Its exclusive days were past; it was beckoning with a garish blaze of light to every passer-by. Through the open door came strains from the overture to "William Tell."

"What a queer place," said the girl. "You can't realize its queerness until we are inside. The crowd that gathers here is as motley as any you find in New York."

Dorcas ran lightly up the steps. The cafe, shabby and weather-beaten outdoors, was bizarre inside. At the far end a dais of painted canvas attempted to create the illusion of sunlit fields. Against it rose a theatrical apple tree. A hundred electric lights blazed inside crimson apples on its widespread branches. Under it, at a hundred of tables, people were dining vociferously. The place shrieked its antagonism to the civilized ceremony of feeding. Humanity dug its elbows into one another while it handed knives and forks, and screamed its conversation. The rooms reeked with a hundred odors of highly-seasoned food and tobacco smoke. It was a bewildering blend of light and smiles and noise. Dorcas followed Merry through the labyrinth to a small table in a distant corner, hedged about with palms.

"I come here time and again," confessed Merry after they were seated. "I love the place; the crowd is so interesting. People let themselves loose in a coop like this; they enjoy life frankly."

"I should think they did," Dorcas laughed gaily.

Across the room a party of college lads were humming a ragtime song in utter harmony to the orchestra's music. Corks were popping amid the rattle of dishes and silver while laughter in a hundred tones, and the languages of all the old Latin races, were blended in the strange babel.

"It's a droll little world," said Merry. Dorcas pulled off her gloves and sat smoothing them between her fingers.

"I remember," Andrew gazed about him in a reminiscent mood, "one season I was tied up with a summer production, and it was horribly lonesome in New York. There was not a soul in our company I wanted to fraternize with. Enoch was West. I used to come here night after night and work myself into a light-hearted mood. I had a part I hated. I did not go on until the second act, so sometimes I stayed here until half-past seven. The place woke me up. I got into a queer humor while watching people. Before it wore off I used to dash to the theater, as one acts when you are overpowered with sleep, and try to get to bed before you go wide awake again. Usually I don't have to hammer myself into the disposition for work. When I am cast for some role that makes one fairly snort with impatience, it is horribly hard to feel like it. If I get a human character, I love it."

"Like 'John Esterbrook'?"
"Yes, like 'John Esterbrook,'" Miss Dorcas. Merry went on eagerly. "I went tramping yesterday—alone. I found myself within sight of another state before I pulled up. I was—heaven knows how many miles from anywhere. I thrashed things out with myself. I'm going to make 'John Esterbrook' the biggest thing that has struck New York in years."

Dorcas laughed. She felt foolishly happy.

"I am so glad," she said. "It's up to me to do the best I can; I owe it to you," there was grim determination in Merry's voice; "to you and Oswald, he's a prince of a good fellow; now Alice Volk and the child come into it."

"And yourself."

"Yes, myself. If I succeed, it means retrieving more than you imagine."

"And you will confess you wrote the play?"

"Not—yet."

"Why?"

"Miss Dorcas," Merry's voice had a tone of entreaty in it, "I want to ask one thing of you. I ask it because your faith in me is so great and uplifting. Drop the authorship of the play. I cannot explain, I cannot fight the thoughts you have of me. You said once, 'I believe in you.' Do you remember?"

Dorcas looked at him with steadfast eyes and nodded.

"Go on believing. It's the kindest thing you can do for me, and—for Enoch."

Their eyes made a compact though no word was spoken.

They lingered over strange dishes that came and went. Food seemed merely a circumstance, an excuse for being alone and together. They felt curiously isolated, for the noise made a retreat for them as silence does. A sudden lull fell on the babel of sound. The orchestra, which had rested for a few minutes, began again—not one of its long overtures, but a prelude to the florid music in an Italian opera. Through the murky atmosphere a woman's voice shrieked out with rare sweetness.

Dorcas rose to her feet for a second, searching for the singer; then she seated herself with her back to the table. The crash of dishes, the rattle of silver, and the popping of corks continued, but tongues were stilled except for one voice. It was singing the tremendous aria from "Ernani."

The girl drew a long breath as the last note died away into silence then she turned eagerly to Merry.

"Who is she?"

"I'll tell you in a minute." She turned again to look at the singer, who stood crushed into a narrow balcony which was crowded to discomfort by a piano and four musicians. The woman was absurdly fat and absurdly gowned. Years ago, in the palm days of a concert tour, she had swept upon the platform in a robe of burnt orange velvet splashed gorgeously with silver lace and scintillating embroidery. It had been years of service, then grown tawdry, unfashionable, soiled, and grotesquely queer. It reminded Dorcas of the stately door in its last stage of shabbiness. The woman's straw-colored hair was gathered into a ridiculous pompadour. Across the dining room, through murky waves of tobacco smoke, the girl could see careworn wrinkles about the woman's eyes. The vivid scarlet of her cheeks was pitifully false, false as the whiteness of her vast, bare shoulders. Again she began to sing, something which came thrilling from the wonderful throat with perfect coloratura. She threw back her head and tilted her face till Dorcas saw only the profile. For one moment the gross lines disappeared; instead came a glimpse of beauty and picturesqueness, a dignity which belonged to the days of youth and power, the royal days of a singer.

The room rang with an encore, then came a shriek of command. "Dance!" shouted the group of students in a corner.

"Oh!" cried Dorcas piteously. "Oh! how can they do it?"

The musicians huddled themselves and their instruments closer together, indifferently as if it were part of every night's program. The pianist struck a few bars of some tinkling thing in a musical comedy, then the singer began to sway her huge body. There was no space for her feet to move. She sang to the accompaniment, but the physical effort made her wheeze. The orchestra dashed into a tripping chorus, and the enthusiasm of the guests waxed high. Cheers were intermingled with laughter and screams of derision.

"Oh!" cried Dorcas, "oh! the shame of it!"

The singer sank in a chair exhausted, then she rose and pushed her way down from the balcony. Dorcas watched her with a pitiful gaze. Perspiration was washing white streaks through the patches of rouge on her cheeks.

"Who is the woman?" she asked.

"Twenty-five years ago her name was famous from one end of Italy to the other. When she went to Genoa to fill an engagement the whole town turned out to meet her, the shops closed, and it was a public holiday. The people pelted her with flowers and screamed themselves hoarse in a welcome. She was the star of the Bellini in Naples. She sang in Paris and London. She came here, grew sick and could not fill her engagements. A manager went back on her, she lost what money she had, friends deserted her, she came down to this."

"Oh, the poor soul!" Dorcas's voice was a whisper.

"Her's was an unusual case," said Merry. "She is only fifty-three now, so I've heard. It makes you realize into what a short bit of our lives fame is crowded—if fame comes to us. The has-beens in our profession are an army, a pitiful army. Unless one has a home and some one in it to cherish and love, the lonely days of old age are—"

"Well, I never think of them."

He stretched out his hand to intercept a boy who wandered between the tables with a tray full of crimson roses. He laid a bunch of them before Dorcas. She buried her face in the cool petals.

"Shall we go?" asked Merry.

As they pushed their way through the maze of crowded tables they passed a woman who sat dining alone. She wore an orange velvet gown, and a shabby lace scarf covered her naked shoulders. Dorcas paused for a moment.

ment, laid her hand upon the woman's arm, and spoke a few words in Italian. The singer looked up and put a grimy, ring-bedizened hand upon the girl's fingers. Merry stood watching them. The woman looked very old and faded under the white glare of the electricity, but her face grew eager and tremulous while she poured out her soul in her own language. Dorcas took one rose from the cluster in her arms and laid the rest of the fragrant blossoms beside the singer's plate.

"You'll forgive me for parting with your flowers?" she whispered as she rejoined Merry.

"I'm glad you did it. Once upon a time stage bouquets were a worn-out sensation for that woman; today I guess she is showered with roses about once in a blue moon."

Dinner Stories

During the preparation for battle Pat emerged from his tent wearing his uniform hind side before. This soon attracted the attention of his superior officer, who demanded an explanation. Pat scratched his head and seemed loath to reply, but finally replied with a sheepish grin:

"Well, begorra, Oi thot Oi wore it this way 'till when Oi had to retreat Oi wouldn't get shot in the back."

A German peasant just lost his faithful cow. His wife became so grieved over the loss that her heart was broken, and she, too, died. Scarcely was she buried when one of the neighbors came and offered his daughter, another his sister, and a third his niece, for a wife, whereupon the farmer remarked:

"Well, I can easily see that it is better to lose a wife than a cow in this town. As soon as my wife is dead a choice of half a dozen wives is offered me, but when my cow died, they didn't offer me a single one."

Use This Page and Prove Its Efficiency

A farmer who was a success in his line decided to sell some good machinery. As he knew there was wear in the implements he wished to pass along he ran an ad in his home town paper to the effect that he would sell cheap, some good farm machinery.

Did he dispose of it?
"He did." He actually sold it the very next day to a farmer who was just starting out, and, who at first could not afford the more expensive machinery.
